PASS AND BAY CITY HOLD INTER-CITY MEET AT POINT O' PINES THURSDAY

Annual Ladies' Night and Installation of Officers Occasion of Interest—Many Attend Banquet And Hear Addresses.

Joint banquet meeting and installation of officers of both Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis Rotary Clubs at Point O'Pines, Henderson Point, Thursday night, was quite a gala affair and one that will live in the annals of Rotary clubs of the two sister cities.

The affair was also annual Ladies' Night, the time when Rotarians get an inning—at least, once a year. Hubby gets off every Thursday night, eats out and has a good time as is frequently charged, fortunately not intentionally but more in facetious vein.

Rotarian Jim Evans, chairman of Program Committee for the Bay Club, and appointed a special Committee of One for this occasion, planned and worked the affair out to a nicety, without a flaw or hitch and a program somewhat unusual.

Principal speakers of the evening were first, Rotarian Ray Butler, of Biloxi, for the Bay St. Louis Club. Secondly, Rev. Gerault Jones, Pass Rotarian, for the Pass Christian Club. Both addresses were clever and quite apropos to the occasion. Brief and happy remarks. The speakers were liberally applauded.

The address of welcome was delivered by C. G. Moreau, retiring president of Bay St. Louis Club, who presided for the double occasion.

Officers Installed.

Recently-elected officers were installed. These were, for the Pass Christian club, A. E. Lang, president; Frank French, vice president; Fred Sutter, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Lang had been secretary-treasurer for the past six years or more and his election to the presidency was both because of his ability and as a fitting recognition and honor for services.

Bay St. Louis: John J. McDonald, president; Arthur Seafide, vice-president; Joseph R. Scharff, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Seafide, one of the original organizers of Bay Rotary, when the late Mayor Bob Webb, E. J. Leonard and others organized the local club, has served as secretary for eight years, always efficiently and to the maximum of satisfaction. He, too, was recognized for signal service and put on the way to the presidency for next year.

Dr. James A. Evans was song leader for the evening and a number of song words had been printed on slips of paper, distributed to the guests. Selections were both appropriate and popular and added to the spirit of the evening.

Presentation of Gold Pin.

John J. McDonald, the new president, in a few and well chosen words, speaking for the Bay St. Louis club presented C. G. Moreau, the retiring president, with a gold pin bearing the emblem of Rotary.

This beautiful affair was largely attended, Rotarians and Rotaryans from the two sections of the west end of the Mississippi Gulf Coast and in addition there were quite a number of specially invited guests who, by their presence, added to the occasion. Women, their feminine charm enhanced by garb of summery vogue, and their gallant escorts in the prevailing white.

The long banquet table was beautifully set, cut flowers in tasty profusion. The menu was one of variety and complete in addition to the excellent cuisine of Point O'Pines. Mrs. Orle Pollard, hostess, is due praise for her part in the arrangement and preparations for the banquet. The management of Point O'Pines seemingly spared no effort and their part of the affair lacked none of the essentials necessary to make it a success.

Bay Rotary New President.

President John J. McDonald, new president Bay St. Louis Club, served the past year as vice president. He is one of the live and progressive members and always evinced a lively interest in all matters pertaining to Rotary. He has always shown a keen interest in civic and business affairs and ever associated with the best interest of the community.

Mr. A. E. Lang, new president Pass Christian Rotary, is also a live and progressive citizen of his locality. Ever to the front and active in every endeavor calculated to benefit both his section and the Coast in general.

Mr. J. M. Terrell, retiring president of the Pass, is the resident representative for the Mississippi Power Company. He has devoted much time and given the club an active interest which has stood in good stead. He served the club during a time of economic stress when it was difficult to steer almost any enter-

TECHE INC., BUS CASE DECISION

To Be Given Friday By Judge Russell—Hearing Wednesday and Thursday.

The case of Teche Lines, Inc., vs. City of Bay St. Louis, was heard in Chancery Court Wednesday afternoon, and final argument heard Thursday morning.

After a lengthy review of the case Chancellor D. M. Russell took the matter under advisement and will give final decision this Friday morning. The case originated by a petition filed by Teche Lines, Inc., to obtain an injunction enjoining the City of Bay St. Louis from enforcing Ordinance No. 24, which prohibits motor vehicles of over two-ton capacity operating on certain streets in said city. The bill set out that the ordinance was unreasonable and discriminatory in that it was aimed directly at the buses, also that same interfered with Interstate Commerce.

City Attorney Lucien M. Gex represented the municipality while Attorney Walter J. Gex, Jr., of Gex & Gex, represented the Teche corporation. The case has attracted considerable interest and the decision will be awaited with interest.

LAUNDRY MOVES TO NEW BLDG.

Local Enterprise Is Now Housed in Own Spacious Building, Hancock Street.

Recently completing a building, measuring 32x56, constructed stoutly of frame, and located in Hancock between Washington and Sycamore streets, the Bay Laundry is now housed in its own new home and location.

Moving the plant equipment was no easy task from the former backyard place a block down the street, where the Bay Laundry had its incipency by former owners, who, too, deserve credit for building it from a small and humble beginning.

Last year the present owner, Loyd Ladner of Bay St. Louis purchased the plant from Mr. B. Spotorno who moved to Memphis, Tenn., to reside. Mr. Ladner and associates worked without stint and finally finding the place too small for proper expansion, purchased a site and recently the building was finished.

The plant is well equipped and work is facilitated to a degree that makes it possible to turn it out in the minimum of time. Quality of the laundry is of such excellence as to make it a subject of comment generally and as a result patronage increases.

Mr. Ladner is energetic, courteous and ever solicitous to the wishes of the trade. He is surrounded by an able and energetic organization. The new building is quite attractive and establishes for Bay St. Louis a new and permanent industry.

VISITING NEW YORK CITY.

PASTOR OF CATHOLIC CHURCH SOLICITING HELP SUGGESTION

Church Our Lady of the Gulf Obligations Soon Falling Due—Assistance Solicited.

The pastor of the church of Our Lady of the Gulf appends to the weekly bulletin or calendar of the church, a memorandum to the effect that suggestions are invited how to realize cash for the relief of the church and the same issued from the pulpit last Sunday at the different services.

It is well known that while people attend church during time of depression equally as well as in times of normalcy contributions and other support to the church has necessarily fallen off to a considerable degree and as a result the treasury has subsequently suffered.

The church of Our Lady of the Gulf has a debt of public record, interest-bearing bonds that fall due annually, heavy insurance premiums that protect both the building and bondholders as well and large sums of money are demanded each year.

The time for this demand is fast approaching and the pastor is appealing to parishioners to help him save their church and meet the obligations. He wishes some one to suggest a plan that will possibly not be burdensome to parishioners and public and yield annually.

parties, bazaars, and the like have rendered such effort impracticable. Card parties are small at best and in no measure would be of assistance. Hence someone is wanted who may suggest and enlist their own efforts and that of others in coming to a rescue in the midst of a critical time.

Surely there is someone who can offer a suggestion. Someone who would be willing to head a group of workers and with assistance come to the assistance of the church. There is no doubt it can be done.

The Woman's Missionary Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, July 18, at 3 P. M., at the residence of Miss May Edwards with Mrs. M. E. Badon, Mrs. C. M. Shipp and Miss Ruth Schreck as co-hostesses.

Thomas J. Conway Undergoes Operation Of Foot Amputation

A sufferer for years from an affection of the foot, Thomas J. Conway was taken to New Orleans, the latter part of last week through the personal assistance and kindness of Conrad Sick, Jr., and Billy Griffith, and placed in the city hospital for necessary attention. On examination it was found he was in a serious condition and a foot so impaired from the inroad of a chronic disease that amputation was necessary.

Reports are to the effect he stood the ordeal well and is doing as well as could be expected. Mr. Conway is prominently known, a representative citizen of Bay St. Louis for over forty years. At one time city treasurer and for many years clerk of the local order of Woodmen of the World, and holding various positions of trust from time to time.

Friends will regret to learn of his misfortune.

MANY VISITORS TO MISSISSIPPI EXHIBIT CHICAGO EXPOSITION

Echo Correspondent Says Mississippi Knocked Out Home Run—Many See Fair.

(Correspondence Sea Coast Echo) Chicago, July 12.—Well, business seems to be picking up all over. I know that here at the World's Fair there have been over a million more paid admissions than was expected up to this time. And if I don't miss my guess, nearly all of them have come into the Mississippi Exhibit.

Mississippi sure knocked out a home run in the big league last week. Chairman E. H. Bradshaw of the Mississippi Committee was up here putting Mississippi on the map. And so was Secretary of State Walker Wood who is also a member of the Committee. Then along comes Agricultural Commissioner J. C. Holton, the other member of the Mississippi Committee, and steals the show by getting on the National Broadcast of the Farm and Home Hour.

Well, the boys all did themselves proud. By the way, they took some pictures of the Mississippi Exhibit, and Chairman Bradshaw took some prints home with him. I think many of them will have some cuts made and run these pictures in the papers for those unfortunate people to see who just can't come up here. Of course, pictures are fine things and beat nothing at all, but no photographer or no artist could ever do justice to the amazing spectacle this World's Fair offers.

I am still sticking around the Mississippi Exhibit and waiting for you to come up. What are you waiting on, anyway? The Fair is on now in full blast, and so is vacation time. Put the two together and you will have something to remember and talk about the rest of your life, believe me.

Farm Agent Given Contract For Year

R. H. Bryson, who has served Hancock county for the past 18 months as county agent, after that office had been temporarily abolished by the board of supervisors, has been given a new contract for another 12-month period. MRS. CECILE LADNER DUBUISSON DIES AT HOME TUESDAY EVE.

Daughter of Pioneer Family Of City Victim of Sudden Illness—Buried Thursday P. M.

The community was shocked Wednesday morning when it was learned that Mrs. Cecile Ladner Dubuison, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Ladner, had suddenly passed away the night before, Tuesday, July 11, 1933, at 11 o'clock, a victim of indigestion, it was said.

Mrs. Dubuison was a native of Bay St. Louis, aged 69 years and was a widow. She was a daughter of one of the oldest and representative families of Bay St. Louis, her parents well known to many of the older inhabitants of both city and county. She was the widow of Joseph Dubuison.

She lived with her sister, Miss Ladner, and a brother, Cyril, at the family homestead, No. 316 Citizen street, from which place the funeral took place Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, one of the largest noted; interment, at the family plot in Cedar Rest cemetery, with ceremony of the Catholic church of which faith the deceased had been a consistent and life-long member.

Residing with her sister, Miss Emma Ladner, she is survived by another sister, Mrs. Joseph L. Favre, wife of former Supervisor Jos. L. Favre; four brothers, Cyril, Alcide, Sylvan Ladner of Bay St. Louis and Victor Ladner residing at Lakeshire. Sylvan J. Ladner former city secretary and later city commissioner. County Clerk A. G. Favre is a nephew. Miss Alcide Ladner, manager local telephone exchange, is a niece.

Mrs. Dubuison was supposedly in the best of health during the early hours of the evening. She was suddenly taken with an apparent heart attack which, it was said, caused by acute indigestion. She was well known for her splendid life of usefulness and nobility of character, living a life of unselfishness and of service to others. One who had been of such marked usefulness will be missed more than in the ordinary sense and her death causes an irreparable loss. The family, bowed deep in grief, have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends and acquaintances both in Bay St. Louis and Hancock county as well as away. It can be well said that a good woman has gone to her reward.

YOUTH IS VICTIM OF FATALITY

Robert Howard Williams Loses Life in Crush at Logtown—Dr. D. H. Ward Summoned.

Robert Howard Williams, 20-year-old son of W. Horace Williams, prominent contractor, died in Touro infirmary Friday morning of injuries suffered on one of his father's construction jobs at Logtown, Miss.

Young Williams was on vacation from Washington and Lee engineering school and was working for his father on a contract calling for construction of six bridges in the vicinity of Logtown. Reports say he was on a night shift of one of the pile driving barges and was caught between the barge and a tug which had collided with it, receiving internal injuries which proved fatal seven hours later.

He was one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Tulane University.

The New Orleans Item said that "though no formal announcement had yet been made, he was known to have been engaged to Miss Brent Wickliffe, debutante daughter of Mrs. Lydia Wickliffe of New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

Dr. D. H. Ward Summoned

Dr. D. H. Ward, physician of this city, was summoned and at once hastened to Logtown and attended the young man and made him as comfortable as possible under the circumstances. Ambulance from the Fahey firm of Bay St. Louis conveyed young Williams to Touro, accompanied by Dr. Ward. However, the injuries of internal character were so serious that the victim shortly passed away at Touro from inward hemorrhage.

Faculty Selected For Pass Christian High School

The following faculty members were selected recently for the session of 1933-34 of the Pass Christian High school; Superintendent, Frank L. French, re-elected for fourth consecutive term; Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, Miss Leah Landy, Miss Lena Lamason, Miss Adele Bielenberg, Miss Margaret Terrell, Miss Naomi Sautier, Miss Clara Mae Sautier, Miss Blanche Etheridge and Professor Francis McDonald.

Presided over by the newly-elected president, John J. McDonald, Bay St. Louis Rotary Club held its first regular meeting for the new year at The Answer, Union Street, at which Capt. H. J. Machette, in charge Citizens' Civilian Camp, located near Catahoula, Hancock county, was guest of honor and speaker of the evening.

Vice President Arthur A. Seafide and Secretary-Treasurer Joseph R. Scharff, other new officers were also present.

Captain Machette outlined the organization of maintenance of the camp in which two hundred young men are engaged for the purpose for which it was established. He said it was not a military camp but a civilian one, under military discipline. The men engaged in forestry and kindred work left camp five days a week at 7 o'clock and returned at 3 o'clock, thus engaged in active service eight hours per day at a 5-day week. They were in charge of Chief of Forestry Givens from the time they left until they returned.

The government equipped them with two blankets, two working sets of clothes and shirts, four suits underclothing and an equal number of socks. All but the blankets would remain their property. They were paid $30.00 per month, $25.00 of which is mailed back home from government headquarters.

A new mess hall had been built, 184 feet by 22 feet. At one end was located the kitchen and an office section at the other. Cooking heretofore conducted in the open would from Wednesday of this week be prepared indoors. Newspapers and magazines in the amount of $76.00 had been subscribed for the entertainment and edification of the boys and a radio and other means of recreation were provided for.

Cost of Maintenance

An interesting part of the talk was on the subject of maintenance cost. He said, in part, that each man cost the government $2.02 per day, proportioned as follows:

Shelter 15c, clothing 3c, meals 33c, medical 8c, equipment 8c, motor 3c, pay $1.00, welfare 4c, supervision 13c, transportation 15c.

These figures are computed on the basis of two hundred men. Members of the camp are principally from Hattiesburg, Laurel and vicinity, he said. Most have high school education and quite a number have had a share of university study. They are young men of above average intelligence and understanding and make camp life agreeable to the ideal extent.

While the pay is $30.00 per month there is chance for promotion with pay to forty and as high as fifty-five per month, depending, of course, on the development and ability of the men and the things they show a disposition to do in more advanced endeavor. And again, there is the possibility of demotion. But we are very proud of our men. In this wise they will accomplish more and at the end will have served the object of the C. C. C. to the fullest extent and benefit themselves from the advantages of both training and experience.

All Lights Out at 9 O'Clock.

They are allowed out of evening, with permit, but at 9 o'clock all lights must be extinguished. The dance last Friday night at the new mess hall was quite a success. Captain Machette told The Echo later that possibly the next dance might be more attended from Bay St. Louis as he was contemplating transportation to and from this city. Every effort is exerted for comfort and happiness of the young men. They have made themselves deserving of every consideration possible, he said.

CLAYTON RAND VISITS.

Clayton Rand, publisher Mississippi Guide at Gulfport, was a visitor to Bay St. Louis, Tuesday and welcome caller on The Echo. Mr. Rand returned home last week from an auto trip covering over five thousand miles, his itinerary extending as far as Old Orchard, Maine. He attended the International Rotary convention at Boston and viewed the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago. At Indianapolis he spent several days visiting. He was accompanied by Mrs. Rand and their young son, Tom, who is spending a while at a boys' camp, Lookout Mountain, Tenn. Mr. Rand was recently elected president of Gulfport Rotary Club. Another newspaper publisher, A. E. Lee of the Jackson County Times, was elected president of the Ocean Springs Rotary Club, while Cyril Slyfield, former resident of Bay St. Louis, was elected vice president.

SELLING OF BEER.

DAILY Newspapers carry reports from different sections over the country, Mississippi in particular, where a jury has acquitted someone for selling beer. It appears government license has been previously procured in each instance. This permit, predicated on the theory that beer in the present alcoholic content is non-intoxicating, is granted on payment of certain established fee.

Because Mississippi and other States are under ban of prohibition such license fees are not collectable locally. Because of wise federal authority such fees are collected and the result is beer is sold "legally" as a non-intoxicant and Mississippi cities, counties and the State as well lose revenue.

This presents an unusual condition and the only apparent and quickest remedy would seem to right the prohibition misfit and allow localities selling beer to collect such monies that would in turn lessen the burden of ad valorem taxation well nigh approaching confiscation.

Mississippi and other prohibition States must be the laughing stock of States that have repealed the eighteenth amendment and are collecting due stipend from drinkers of the beverage. Not only local residents drink beer but thousands of tourists who travel through patronize the refreshment places. The Government has put its stamp on beer as non-alcoholic. That should settle it. Why rebel?

HAVE WE LEARNED?

EVERY sensible man in the United States realizes that the speculative market in stocks up to 1929 contributed much to the crash which came during the latter part of the year. Ordinarily one would think that the American people had learned a good lesson but John T. Flynn points out in the News Republic that present indication are that the lesson failed to convince many:

"For instance, one of the things which brought us into so much trouble was wild, crazy speculation. You might suppose we would be cured of that—not completely, of course, but a little; not permanently, of course, but for a while.

"Well, in the beginning of October, 1929, just before the historic crash of that year, when speculation had gotten to its craziest, the number of shares sold in a single week was 19,140,280. During a recent week the number traded by this sober, remorseful and cured nation was 19,925,090. In 1923, the same week had a total of 17,686,715. In 1927, the same week had a total of 8,972,491.

"Anyone who thinks we have learned any lessons is due for a serious jolt. All the old operators—the investment-trust boys, the investment bankers, the stock promoters of all kinds, sensing the approach of a little business, are taking out all the old shells and peas and wheels and dice and cards and getting ready to take money away from the same people in the same old way."

SPECTACULAR FLIGHT.

TWENTY-four seaplanes left Italy recently on an aerial journey to Chicago proceeding by way of Iceland to the American Continent.

The leader of this air armada is General Italo Balbo, intrepid and energetic leader of the Italian air fleets, and considered by many the strongest figure next to Mussolini in Fascist circles.

Years ago three American naval planes journeyed across Europe, by way of Azores but this flight of twenty-four Italian planes in one group is the most ambitious attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean in force ever attempted. Although one plane has already been damaged, the Italians are making good progress and are demonstrating their air-mindedness.

Upon arriving in this country these air units will visit the Chicago Exposition, where everybody hopes the fliers will have an unusually enjoyable stay—they will deserve it.

BETTER THAN JIG-SAW PUZZLE.

William the Conqueror sailed across the channel from France, cleaned up the English, and took over the running of the country for keeps. England dislodged France from her holdings in North America. France helped the United States win freedom from England. The English and Germans trimmed Napoleon at Waterloo. The Americans, French and English made things hot for Germany in the World War. According to latest reports, France is trying to form a coalition with England to whip the American dollar. Why look for amusement in such simple things as jig-saw puzzles when there are international relations to figure out?

HARDLY NOTICED.

A NEWSPAPER dispatch from Brazil tells that the German dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, had arrived upon its third trip of the season. Last year this ship made regular schedules between Germany and Brazil.

It has not been so many years when the completion of a trip like this would have attracted large prominence on the front pages but now it is so commonplace that newspapers only carry a few lines and those not in any prominent place.

PINE FORESTS SHOW GROWTH.

VISITORS to the woods in Hancock county are impressed with the rapid advance of a new forest of pines springing up on all sides. One needs hardly go far from the suburban line to note thousands of young pines springing up here and there as if over night and putting on a bright, green foliage of expansive proportions. Correspondingly, the saplings are growing fast and soon will number with the trees in place of the numberless that fell by the ruthless hand of the sawmill and other operators of other days when the value of a tree was unthought of and no provisions provided for the future and possibly generations.

Someone asks The Echo why this healthy and numerous growth of pines over the county? And why such rapid and thick growth was never noted heretofore.

The answer is plain. Conservation answers the question. The Mississippi Forestry Board, through the instrumentality of the Weston brothers and business associates long ago foresaw the pine lands would soon be denuded and left a barren waste. Consequently they requisitioned the offices of the State forestry workers into action and with a hearty co-operation on part of our people the forest remaining is not only protected from fire but new growth is encouraged and fostered. Also: Good roads provide for drainage and much of the county lands are drained to the advantage of the pine.

At this rate it is expected not many years will have elapsed before Hancock county will again carry a great wealth of timber and afford the kindred industry new lease and life.

We must commend the efforts of those who are responsible for the new growth of abundant pine forests in Hancock county and also to ask a continuance by those who are co-operating to keep away fires and save the woods. That is our fortune and future asset of inestimable benefit.

Doug and Mary have separated. The public announcement merely confirms what many thought in view of Doug's recent trips alone around the world.

TOLL BY DROWNING.

AN Associated Press telegram from Laurel, Miss., to daily newspapers this week told of the drowning of a little girl who had cried "Wolf" once too often and as a result perished in the treacherous depths of the water into which she had gone unknowingly. It was stated the victim had frequently cried "wolf" until the hoax became threadbare and finally caused her life to be forfeited.

Each summer, along the gulf coast as well, a number of lives are lost in the waters of the sound and families unnecessarily bereft of their loved ones and their future lives blighted. The memory of the loss of a son or daughter is never obliterated. Even time, the great assuager, never wipes away the sorrow. Who ever has lost a child well knows this.

The Echo contends there is no reason and there should be no cause for loss of even one solitary life by drowning during the summer just as there should be no automobile tragedies.

Young people and others who either go swimming or bathing venture far beyond their depth, knowingly and deliberately with the inevitable tragic result. Why should one flirt with death? Why should one go where danger is known to lurk? The overturning of a boat in deep water might be explained but there is no extenuating circumstance or palliative reason for those who drown because they bathe or swim either in unknown water or beyond their depth.

No one has ever heard of someone walking into a fire, moving railroad train, or venturing into a similar hazard. Then why, the question is asked, people are so foolish and thoughtless to go to their untimely death within the water's depth.

Jackson county continues to collect toll on the Pascagoula bridge. Kind of an emergency fund. However, a good idea. More toll bridges might have lessened our burden of taxation.

PERMANENT ROADS.

GOOD roads have accomplished much for the pleasure and satisfaction of our people to say nothing of the building and stimulating additional trade. Remarkable strides have been made in building of permanent roads. By this means distances are shortened and towns are seemingly closer; people have become acquainted and in a general measure we have broadened in a manner that otherwise could not be accomplished.

We have burdened ourselves with taxes on bond issues for good roads until it hurts beyond duration. But every dollar well spent for the purpose has been worth it.

Another result of permanent roads connecting every point in the country the public has been enabled to travel. To see their own country, to go places that otherwise seemed well nigh prohibitive. If normalcy ever returns and we hope it will the network of good roads built over the country will come into double usage. There will be more travel, more animation of people and business and the money expended will return dividends.

Each summer our people travel far and wide. This is made possible not only by the automobile but through the medium of good roads. An auto without roads serves a limited purpose and fails in the educational advantage of travel. The hope is expressed that the work of road building will continue in reasonable measure and that in time the best roads will have covered the entire country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Maine to Florida.

Our own shortcut from New Orleans to the Mississippi Gulf Coast will serve to wonderful and far-reaching purpose, enhancing realty values and affording a means of communication hitherto never dreamed of. Well may we anticipate its completion with enthusiasm.

If the fair price codes do anything they will emphasize quality and if advertising does anything it sells quality.

SAUNTERINGS From Where The West Begins.

By JOHN T. MEYERS.
For The Sea Coast Echo.

DARK sun glass wearers are becoming more numerous each day as summer's brilliant sunshine beams down upon the earth. Many humorous situations have developed from this fact.

Aided by the partial disguise afforded by dark glasses, bill collectors have been able to get within talking distance of "hard pay" clients. Boy friends can indulge in amateur detective tactics and keep tabs on the going activities of flappers and girl friends. This stunt also applies to the sweet young thing who wants to shadow her good looking sheik.

Speakeasys are demanding that customers remove their sun glasses before being permitted to enter.

This fact didn't work so well in the case of one married gent possessing philandering tendencies. Observing a comely, bespeckled lady standing on a street corner, he attempted a harmless flirtation. The lady in question ignored his cute remarks at first. He persisted offering a ride in his automobile.

Then the storm suddenly broke. Indignantly, the lady removed her sun glasses. To his great surprise, the man discovered he had been flirting with his own wife dear. Unbeknowns to hubby she had purchased a new dress, hat, and the misleading goggles. The gent's feeble attempt at explanations were of no avail.

Hubby is not wearing his hat these days. He probably won't, until the bumps on his head have disappeared.

THE San Antonio police department swung its club into action for the first time against the open sale of 3.2 beer, when a raid was made on a downtown cigar store. A quantity of beer was seized by police. A temporary restraining order against the sale of beer at this place of business was granted by the 37th District court. A hearing has been set for Wednesday, July 12th.

The district attorney stated that he would play no part in the city's war against the sale of 3.2 beer in San Antonio. The job will fall to the lot of the city attorney. Mayor Quinn will strive to have establishments caught selling 3.2 beer, or any liquor of intoxicating variety, post bonds to guarantee that sales of such will discontinue until the law permits. Otherwise the city will attempt to have such places padlocked for one year. In a general sense the 3.2 beer sellers have, seemingly, decided to abide by the mayor's edict, suddenly handed down last week.

BEER ELECTION AUGUST 26.

THE general public are optimistic regarding the outcome of the election on August 26th, when the question of legalizing 3.2 beer in the state will be decided upon by the voters of Texas.

One San Antonio crockery store advertises beer mugs in the newspapers. Mexican pretzels are now being manufactured by a local concern.

Mrs. G. A. Slavich, and children, Dorothy and John, of Waveland, have joined Mr. Slavich in Chicago, where they are enjoying the World's Fair.

Just a co-incidence, of course, but a letter from Mrs. Slavich revealed the fact that their temporary Chicago address is listed as Waveland ave.

SAN ANTONIO

readers are served by two daily evening newspapers, and two morning publications, one of which the La Prensa, is printed entirely in Spanish. This paper has a wide following among the Mexicans, many who speak little or no English.

There is also a newspaper printed in German, and a paper especially for the colored citizens. Religious, trade, and labor journals are likewise published in this city.

UNIQUE WAY OF REPORTING TRAGEDY.

WHENEVER any unusual tragedy involving Mexican participants is enacted, a unique, impromptu publication is rushed to press. It is circulated exclusively amid San Antonio's largely Mexican settled west side.

A recent shooting affair in the heart of the Mexican section, that claimed the lives of four young Mexicans, is dramatically set forth in prose style in this two page pamphlet printed on both sides of the paper. The booklet measures 8 1/2 inches long by 5 1/2 inches wide, and is published in Spanish. The last line of the sad poem translated has a motto: "Wine, pistols and cards do not mix, friends."

The spectacular front cover lists the title of the story in bold type: "La Tragedia de la Calle Pecos." Below are pictures of three of the young men slain in a mysterious gun battle. One of the trio is shown as he reposed in the casket before burial. On the back cover is photograph of the 4th victim. He is dressed in the uniform of an American soldier.

A hard driving taxi driver ignored a red signal, threatened the traffic policeman's knees, missed a safety zone by a hair, and lightly grazed a bus, all in one dash.

The policeman hailed him, then stroled over to the taxi, pulling a big handkerchief from his pocket, en route.

"Listen, cowboy!" he growled. "On yer way back I'll drop this and see if you can pick it up with your teeth."

WHAT THE PRESS SAYS.

BEER AND PUBLIC OPINION.

(Greenville Democrat-News.)

AMONG the news of the past week were several trials in the state of Mississippi for sale or possession of beer. With the exception of one case they were all acquittals. In Corinth a mistrial resulted because one member is reported to have held out for conviction.

The United States congress and the Supreme Court have ruled that three point two beer is non-intoxicating. Mississippi, operating under a law passed a quarter of a century ago, says that beverages containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol cannot be possessed or sold without subjecting the violator to punishment.

Public opinion has declared 3.2 beer "legal" in Mississippi, judging from the fact that it is being sold practically everywhere in the state with a small number of arrests and no convictions. As a revenue producer, however, it is still illegal and the states, as well as the various counties, cities and towns, are pushing dollars away from their treasury windows every day.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A GREAT MAN.

(Slidell News.)

It has been asked to define what constitutes greatness in a man. We fail to qualify as an authority, however, we will give our humble opinion:

Men who accumulate a vast fortune in the eyes of the world may be termed great men.

Men who accomplish diplomatic negotiation, averting war and strife, are referred to as great.

Inventors, sculptors, painters, scientists, surgeons and those who have accomplished the seemingly impossible in the air, and engineers who construct great tunnels, buildings and bridges are heralded as great men.

But to us there are unusual men, keen intellects; in fee simple, celebrities, geniuses—not great.

In our opinion a man who can face the most bitter adversity without losing faith; who can be just in his dealing with his friends and enemies; who can look upon his neighbor and his vast wealth without a pang of covetousness; who can see some good in the most wicked; who has the milk of kindness in his soul; who can look the world in the face and smile in honest sincerity and feel no ill will toward God, or man or society. That man is truly great, rich in a blessing that cannot be bought by gold.

SOME BIBLE FACTS.

OF the 66 books of the Bible 39 are in the Old Testament and 27 in the New, the former containing 929 chapters and the latter 260. Combined they have a total of 773,746 words.

The word "Lord" occurs 1,855 times, "reverend," "girl" and "everlasting punishment," but once each, and "everlasting fire" but twice.

The longest verse is Esther 8:9, of 90 words, and the shortest is John 11:35, consisting of two words, "Jesus wept."

The 19th chapter of Second Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike. The 8th, 15th, 21st and 31st verses of the 107th Psalm are alike, and each of the 26 verses of the 136th Psalm ends alike with the words "for his mercy endureth forever."

Ezra 7:21 contains all the letters of the alphabet except the letter 'J'. The books of Obadiah, Philemon, Second John, Third John and Jude contain only one chapter each.

SAVE THE CORN CROP.

FARMERS of Hancock county should take every precaution to save their corn crop—not only to encourage thrift, but from an economic standpoint, reports coming to this office from points over the state indicate that Mississippi is facing one of the shortest corn crops in several years, and unless farmers of this county produce sufficient grain for their livestock, the prospects of securing it from other states indicate that it will be somewhat expensive.

Even where good yields of corn are made thousands upon thousands of bushels are destroyed annually over the state by the corn weevil. The greater part of this loss could be overcome by a little closer attention on part of growers.

The adult moth of the corn weevil lays its eggs upon the exposed kernels in the field or on corn in storage. The eggs, which appear as mere specks, are whitish when first laid but later turn reddish. They are laid singly or in masses at the base of the kernel and hatch in a few days. The young larva or "worm" that hatches from the egg is seldom seen, not only because it is so small but because it bores at once into the kernel, usually at the base, and, as soon as it has eaten out of the kernel a hole large enough to conceal itself, it spins a web over the entrance. Once in the kernel the larva continues to feed on the interior and in warm weather becomes full grown in about three weeks.

After the larva has eaten a round tunnel to outside of the kernel it made its silken chamber or cocoon, it transforms into a pupa. The pupal period lasts from 6 to 10 days in summer and then the adult moth emerges, and is ready to mate and lay eggs for the next generation. In warm weather, one generation may require not more than five or six weeks.

Care in selecting the variety of corn to be grown has much to do with percent of weevil damage even if no further consideration is given, but with proper treatment after crop is harvested, the loss could be reduced to a minimum. Varieties of corn vary in characteristics. By selecting a variety which produces a long tight shuck extending well beyond end of ear; gathering at right time in fall when mature and then storing in tight crib where the corn can be treated with carbon disulphide, very little weevil damage will be experienced.

Carbon disulphide does not injure seed for planting or for food. While the odor of carbon disulphide is very disagreeable, it passes off after the seeds have been well aired. It seeds are dry when fumigated they are not injured either for planting or for food. Carbon disulphide is a highly inflammable liquid and must not be exposed to lights or fires.

For further information on this subject ask your County Agent.

Build Up that Skinny Child!

Enrich His Impoverished
Blood

Sickly, weak, underweight children are usually lacking in rich, red blood. When blood becomes poor, a child becomes run down. Already weak, he loses appetite, which makes him still weaker. Take no chances on a child gaining strength by himself. Start giving him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic right away. This famous tonic contains both iron and tasteless quinine. From mother's rich, red blood while quinine tends to purify the blood. In other words, you get two effects in Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Put your child on this time-proven tonic for a few days and see the difference it makes in him. Good appetite, lots of pep and energy and red roses in his cheeks. Children like Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic and take it eagerly. It is absolutely harmless and has been a reliable family medicine for half a century. Get a bottle today at any store.

STATE REPEALIST LEADER DECLARES VICTORY CERTAIN

Nelson Trimble Levings of Crusaders Declares Delegates To Convention Should Be From State at Large.

Nelson Trimble Levings, of Moorehead, Miss., chairman of the State Committee of the Mississippi Crusaders, has been spending a few days on the Mississippi Gulf Coast to confer with local chairmen of the Crusaders, and visited Bay St. Louis. Mr. Levings is enthusiastic over the outlook from the standpoint of his organization and declares there is no question as to the result if the people are given the opportunity to express themselves through delegates elected at large from the State, who will really be representatives of the people rather than organized minorities. The legislature should set up machinery to give the people their sovereign rights of self-government. They should not begrudge the people this.

In the opinion of Mr. Levings nine delegates from the state at large representing repealists and nine representing anti-repealists would better serve the entire people than one or two delegates from each county. He pointed out that some counties have much larger populations than others and that it would be manifestly unjust to disregard this fact in the selection of delegates as well as undemocratic.

In addition he pointed out that from the standpoint of economy the plan for delegates at large is much to be preferred, as considerable expense would be saved by the smaller numbers.

Mr. Levings within the past few weeks has visited over 60 counties of the state and he says that in every section of the state the sentiment of the people is overwhelmingly in favor of repeal and legalization of beer.

Discussing the situation in the state, Mr. Levings said: "We already have liquor and beer whether we care to admit it or not. But we do not have the revenue or the control. The repeal fight is not a wet-dry fight. It is a fight once again for states rights and for a sane and practical solution of the liquor problems and evils we already have on every hand in every section of the state. It is a fight against hypocrisy and bigotism."

"Senator Pat Harrison and Congressman Will Whittington have graduated into the class of statesmen. They both have come out strongly and fearlessly for Repeal and for legalized beer. Congressman Will Collier says he wants the people to decide this issue. That is fair. Bishop Bratton and Bishop Gallor and other church dignitaries have come out equally strong for repeal and legalized beer. These rest of our delegation in Congress are straddlers and political cowards. Based on reliable figures I estimate $350,000 as a minimum beer revenue for Mississippi. Others have estimated as much as $700,000. With this possible revenue from a tax that would be willing paid, I cannot see how talk of an increase in the sales tax is at all justified."

"President Roosevelt has declared in unmistakable terms that he expects Mississippi and all southern states to support the Democratic platform they voted for. His program for the rehabilitation of the nation is predicated upon this and I do not believe that loyal Mississippi Democrats will permit their party regularly to be questioned."

"The Crusaders support the right of the people to voice their opinion on this question and will fight any attempt to deny them their rights in this matter. We emphasize the election of the convention delegates from the state-at-large."

"Melody Cruise" First Film With All Musical Continuity A. & G. Sunday-Monday

"Melody Cruise" is not a musical comedy in the accepted sense of the word, but the first musical movie conforming to screen rather than stage standards, it is said of the RKO-Radio picture which opens at the A. & G. Theatre, Sunday and Monday, with Charlie Ruggles, Phil Harris, Greta Nissen and Helen Mack in the leading featured roles.

The picture marks an innovation in motion picture musical productions, according to director Mark Sandrich. Exaggerated chorines, waiters, belted the bane of the former musical films, are absent in "Melody Cruise." In their stead are thirty-six glittering beauties in assembled rhythms and incidental songs which weave easily into the continuity. The thirty-six girls who provide the brilliant background of feminine pulchritude actually have bit roles in the picture, and are not introduced as an interruption. By clever devices the songs are made part of the story; musical dialogue supplants spoken dialogue.

Trick photographic effects were created to achieve harmonic novelties in "Melody Cruise." Fish are shown dancing on the waves. Stars form music bars and shimmering notes in the skies. Steamship whistles of varied tones unite in a symphony. An ocean liner waits on its stern in the harbor.

A cast of comedy favorites was selected to enact the sophisticated frivolity of the story. Charlie Ruggles heads the group, which includes Phil Harris, celebrated radio crooner

Rheumatism Gone Too

Here is a woman who was rapidly putting on weight and who was troubled with rheumatism too. Read her letter:

"I started taking Kruschen Salts because of the good it had done for a friend of mine who had been crippled with rheumatism. At the end of the second bottle I was weighed and find I am now only 148 pounds (original weight 163 lbs.), at which I am so pleased. But, I have also felt my rheumatism much less, which has been so troublesome in my knees. I must say I think Kruschen a splendid weight reducer." (Miss) E. L. P. Overweight and rheumatism poisoning often go together. The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to perform their functions properly—little by little, but surely. You feel wonderfully healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life!

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all drug stores—a jar lasts four weeks and costs not more than 85 cents.

PRIESTS' RETREAT COMES TO CLOSE THIS FRIDAY A. M.

Annual priests' retreat of the diocese of Natchez will come to a close this Friday morning with a pontifical high requiem mass for deceased clergy of the diocese.

While the retreat is held at St. Stanislaus College and chapel the mass will be held at the church of Our Lady of the Gulf. Approximately fifty priests attended the retreat, conducted by Rev. T. J. Cummings, Society of Jesus, with Rt. Rev. R. O. Gerow, bishop of Natchez. The retreat, as usual, was one marked with that great spiritual success that blesses and gives so much divine grace to the participants.

CATCH YIELDS FREAK FISH.

A. A. Jacobs, N. W. Kite and Curtis Yentky fished in English Bayou near Pearl River last Friday and Saturday and landed 30 nice size black bass. 4 striped bass, 70 perch and one freak fish, which they described as part black bass and part striped bass, the upper half resembling a black bass and the lower half having stripes exactly like a striped bass. They reported that a black bass which weighed easily six pounds broke a line and escaped. The entire catch was made with fly rod.

MERELY THEORETICAL

By GEORGE E. SCHILLING (For The Sea Coast Echo)

MONEY.

A LONG time ago a very wise man wrote that "the love of money is the root of all evil." It is probable that this saying is true in ways of which he had no idea at the time. A good many people think he said that money is the root of all evil, and giggle gleefully as they hint that they would like plenty of the root. If they had as much sense as the man they try to ridicule they might realize that they already have all the greed they require, and even that, greedily as they may be, they truly do not want money at all.

If you, who read this column, are a reasonable, normal person, you do not want money either. What that is dumb foolishness, is it? What you want most in this world is a million dollars? Well, what good would it do you? If you had a million dollars, and the grocer and his clerks had a million dollars each, and the ice-man and the washer-woman and everybody else all had millions of dollars we would have more trouble for a few days than we are having now. Figure it out for yourself. Nobody would want to work until they found out that the money was of no particular use, and we would have a terrible time getting the common necessities of daily life.

But that isn't what you mean, at all. You mean that you want a million dollars yourself, but you don't want your neighbors to have any millions too. Well, that is just exactly what has happened, only it is the other fellow who has the millions, or millions, and you are only one of the neighbors. Of course that makes a great difference to you, but it makes no difference at all in the theory. It seems more important to you than it does to the one who has the millions, because he is so much afraid of losing it, and, in a good many cases, he is losing it. Another one shot himself last week because he had lost his money. One man, who had not one little million, but a lot of them, said that he lost a million dollars a day for a hundred and thirty days, and that was all he had.

But even less than our dream million would be useful. For what? Why, to spend, of course, to buy things with. Exactly, just as we were saying, you don't want the money itself, you want the things it will buy, food, clothes, a comfortable house, and travel, entertainment, parties, automobiles, security for old age and all that sort of thing. If you could have everything else you want without money, you would not want the money. Did you ever think of that?

It is a good safe guess that much of our trouble has come from the fact that we have all forgotten what we really want in thinking too much about money. We have had a lot of folks, many of them, but not all, in New York City, thinking about money, and dealing in money, and measuring everything in money, until they fooled themselves into thinking that it is important in itself. We common people stood around trying to imagine how smart they were, until we woke up to find that they are really just as dumb as the rest of us. They had simply forgotten what the whole business is all about, and naturally they got themselves and everybody else all tangled up.

This complicated money system broke down so badly that a lot of people out west, who had no money and couldn't get any, gave it up as a bad job, and started to trading with each other without using money. Reports are that they got along surprisingly well. There were plenty of things to go around, only nobody had the money to exchange for them, so it occurred to somebody to start trading the things themselves, and their own labor, and found that they could live very well. Some of the exchanges were quite unusual. One girl traded a cow for a year's college education.

Of course, when the trades became complex, it was very convenient to have something to make the work of trading easier, so the associations that were formed began printing script to take the place of money. As this could not be hoarded, in fact was sometimes cancelled at the end of a month, it kept business active. People had to think of goods, and not of money.

If money were of no use at all, of course we would not have made so much fuss about it. The truth is that it is a tool, not an end in itself, except for the miser, who is more or less insane. The economist says that it has three functions, or uses: First, it is a medium of exchange, just like the scrip. The boss pays his employee for work done, and the worker pays for his food, clothes, house-rent and uses what is left over to go to the movies, or what-not. Exchanges are so complex that we shall probably always need something as a convenient medium of exchange.

Second, money is a measure of value. It would be a hard task to tell the worth of an hour's labor, a new hat, a cold drink and a street-car ride unless we could measure them all in dollars, or shillings, or candareens, or something like that. Nowadays the best money is supposed to be gold, or paper which can be exchanged for gold; but we might use money based on average prices, or energy units, which might even be better than gold. The one necessity is that the money be something that everybody will accept, and that there be not too much of it.

Third, money is used as a standard of deferred payments. That means that when you borrow to get your new automobile, or your new house, that you pay back the same amount (never mind the interest just now) that you received. For this purpose gold is a rank failure. When prices went up a hundred per cent or more, during and after the war, it meant that money had dropped to one-half its former value, or more. When prices went away down again

It meant that money had more than doubled in value. A standard that shrinks and stretches so much as that is a poor measure. That is what so many farmers are complaining about now. They say they borrowed cheap dollars and have to pay back expensive ones.

Money, then, is a necessary tool. We can't get along without it, any more than we seem to get along with it. Needing money, we also need bankers and brokers to specialize in handling it, just as we need other trained specialists. The good banker is a very useful and necessary citizen. It is the fellow, no matter how big or how little he looks, who thinks of money as an end in itself and who uses his skill to play tricks with it, who is about as useful as a gangster. One kind of a money market may be like a shop full of good tools, with crooked mechanics and not enough customers. No matter what tools we have, we cannot be prosperous unless we can build up a good trade. Money, like tools, is useless without buyers.

Awful Condition

"Darn it, dad," said son, "isn't there any way of borrowing a little money?"

"I'm afraid not, my boy," replied his dad. "What do you want it for now?"

"To get the blamed car fixed up," growled the son, "it's so bad now the cars I can pass with it are those that are parked."

COMMENT ON SPORTS BY SHERIDAN

BRITISH WIN CUP. VINES MAY TURN PRO EVAN'S SUGGESTION. PRIMO LOOKS AROUND.

The American Ryder Cup team lost to Great Britain by 6 1/2 to 5 1/2 when the defending team rallied to win three single matches in a row all of them trembled in the balance but the match ended when Syd Easterbrook holed a two-foot putt to win his match with Densmore Shute, 1 up. At the finish of the foursomes the Americans trailed 1 1/2 to 2 1/2. The British have won three out of five cup matches since the series began with the informal play of 1926.

Ellsworth Vines, it is said, is considering an offer of $10,000 a year for five years to turn pro. The American tennis champion has risen to top heights in the amateur world and seems about to enter a dominant ascendancy on the courts everywhere. Whether he decides to give it up is for him to decide and we should not criticize his decision. However, it would be mighty good to see the Californian taking the place of Crochet for a series of years. However, looming across his path is the Australian star, Jack Crawford.

Billy Evans, manager of the Cleveland Indians suggests that the tilt between the all-stars of both leagues, as played in Chicago, become an annual custom, with the receipts put into a fund for the construction and maintenance of a home for old-time ball players. The interest aroused by the recent clash gives a fair idea of what the fans think. Under the proposal players on all teams would fight for positions on the all-star aggregations and, in time, the clash might rival the world series in interest. It is a good idea from Evans and should be adopted.

One of the best exhibitions of hurling in a number of years occurred recently when Carl Hubbell, of the New York Giants, blanked the St. Louis Cardinals for 13 innings, winning the game 1 to 0. Tex Carleton, the opposing pitcher, worked out even terms for 16 innings when he was lifted for a pinch hitter. This was close to record. In 1918 Pittsburgh and Boston, in the National league, played 20 scoreless innings before the former won by two runs in the 21st.

A lot of people are boosting Primo Carnera since he scored his knockout over Jack Sharkey. Up to the time of the blow the Boston Gob was well ahead of the Italian but he got in the way of a right uppercut and woke up to find himself in the dressing room. Carnera and Baer look as likely foes but one can expect the big Italian to reap some coin before risking his title, although frantic efforts are being made to secure a championship bout in the fall.

Carnera's victory was a lucky break for the Madison Square Garden crowd, about to be edged out of the picture. Its contract with Sharkey expired with the fight and as Dempsey had Baer under his wing it looked as if the garden was out of the picture. Now, with Carnera hooked to a contract, the championship fracas is apt to be a joint affair.

AGED RESIDENT PASSES AWAY AT HOME IN THIS CITY

Philip Roth Succumbs to Infirmities of Advanced Age—Survived by Family.

Philip Roth, native of New Orleans, aged 86 years, and a resident of Bay St. Louis for the past forty years, died at the family home in Citizen street Thursday, June 29, following a siege of infirmities incidental to advanced age.

He was both well known in the city of his birth where he spent his younger years prominently identified and, however, latter years because of impaired sight he remained close to home.

This distinguished citizen who had lived long and led a useful life is survived by his wife, Augusta Roth and four children, namely, Mrs. John O'Neal, Mrs. E. V. Lader of Gulfport, Edwin Roth of New Orleans and Mrs. Philomine Baker also of New Orleans.

The funeral was largely attended, many from away and locally present to pay their respect to the memory of the deceased and to offer sympathy to the family in their loss of both husband and father. Many flowers attested to the spirit of regret and marked heartfelt sympathy.

A Catholic, Mr. Roth was buried with the full ceremony of his church, the last rites performed July 1, Rev. Father Nelius Downing officiating at the ceremony at house and church and also at Cedar Rest cemetery where the remains were tenderly consigned to the keeping of mother earth.

Passing Away of Mother Euphrasia of St. Joseph's, 1899-02.

Following an ailment of the heart, Mother Euphrasia, of the order of Sisters of St. Joseph, passed away at St. Joseph Academy, New Orleans, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. A. Father Nelius Downing officiating at the ceremony at house and church and also at Cedar Rest cemetery where the remains were tenderly consigned to the keeping of mother earth.

Mother Euphrasia, was a native of Baton Rouge, La., a Miss Georgia Randolph, and on June 9 celebrated her 79th birthday. She was well known over two states and from the year 1899 to 1902 served St. Joseph Academy, Bay St. Louis, in official capacity of Mother Superioress. She had been a nun for well nigh sixty years and more and her golden jubilee was celebrated some years ago with due ceremony.

Funeral took place Sunday with Rev. Father Kleinpater, of Baton Rouge, a relative, officiating at the ceremony. Interment at St. Louis cemetery, New Orleans. A requiem high mass marked the last rites.

Many of The Echo readers of other years well remember the deceased. She was an accomplished woman, amiable and always friendly. Well liked by all who knew her personality of worth. After serving here she was succeeded by Mother Superioress Augustin, equally well-known.

Sister Euphrasia's passing away was announced Sunday during the services at the church of Our Lady of the Gulf and was the occasion for general regret, even though she had long passed the scriptural allotment of life.

This beautiful and memorable entertainment for the charming guest of honor was given jointly by Mrs. M. V. Gex and daughters, Mrs. Robert A. Genin and Miss V. Gex at the residence of Mrs. Gex on North Beach Boulevard. Luncheon was served at 1 after which the fascinating game of auction bridge caused the afternoon hours to seemingly have fled all too quickly.

Seasonable cut flowers were used extensively in the colorful decoration and evidence not only of artistry and taste but evidencing the fact of the many flowers that bloom on the Gulf Coast even at this time of the warm season.

This affair was one of the fashionable events of the gay summer and that it was numerous attended attests to the popularity of the hostesses.

MANY FRIENDS REMEMBER MISS JOSIE E. WELCH ON OCCASION BIRTHDAY.

Friends from a wide area of States remembered Miss Josephine E. Welch on the occasion of her birthday Saturday of last week, July 8, 1933.

Many telegrams, letters, flowers, candle-bedecked cakes, other gifts and congratulatory and well-wishing messages locally were showered on the honoree of the day. It was truly a birthday for after all we are loved and thought of most by those who do not forget. And Miss Josie's friends did not forget her.

Miss Welch is perhaps one of the best known women of this section and the Mississippi Coast, enjoying the attention of a wide circle over two States and equally acquainted over the country. No woman is better and more prominently known. Her personal mail is said to be the heaviest of any woman resident here. She loves her friends, values their worth, and they in turn regard her with equal affection and consideration. What a grand thought!

What a wonderful measure from life's bounty—to enjoy and appreciate the friendship of those we know and love best.

Miss Welch is well known for her literary taste and attainment. In her earlier years she wrote many verses of more than ordinary merit. These were published variously and especially in the "Times" and "Democrat" when both papers were separately published at New Orleans and known for their literary excellence.

Miss Welch's sister, Mrs. Annie E. Avery, long deceased, was well known as a newspaper writer and general correspondent, her work standing out in more ways than one. Miss Welch is also the aunt of the late Mrs. Blanche Avery, talented and accomplished daughter of her sister. Mrs. Hattie Avery Berthelot, of Louisiana, a niece, and her children are the closest living relatives living in this section.

Miss Welch's place of business, "Ye Old Curiosity Shoppe," is not merely a commercial enterprise and endeavor but the rendezvous for many visitors. Here, Miss Welch's artistic sense is reflected by the stock of unusual and imported wares and novelties. Books and the like form an atmosphere in which this woman of intellect and charm lives. Visited by people and with her books and magazines this is Miss Welch's world. She enjoys a visit from a friend or acquaintance. A visit is an event. You are welcome at Miss Welch's. The outstretched hand, the beaming countenance and the dark, sparkling eyes so expressive, bespeak the gracious welcome.

How much more one must get out of life. To feel and enjoy the touch of fellowship. To live it and breathe its very atmosphere. This is indeed a gift, and endowment from a force higher up. Thus Miss Josie, although she has possibly seen a few years more than many who might read these lines, is still of youthful spirit, a heart that is fired with the warmth of that desire to live and carry on in the hearts and minds of those she knows best and love and they are legion.

Mississippi's Welfare

LET'S THINK ABOUT COTTON FOR INSTANCE

These tables show the major part it plays in Mississippi's economic structure.

MISSISSIPPI
Year Ending Appx. July 31	1929	1930	1931	1932
Lint cotton produced bales	1,462,021	1,875,979	1,458,488	1,719,454
% of total U. S. Crop	10.2	12.9	10.5	10.3
State rank in production	2	2	4	3
Domestic cotton consumed, bales	41,331	36,204	34,365	35,357
% of total for U. S.	.61	.62	.68	.74

Producing over 10% of the cotton grown in the United States, Mississippi uses less than three-fourths of one per cent of the nation's total in her consuming establishments.

With a population of 1.63% and a cotton consumption of less than 75%, compared to the United States as a whole, it is apparent that production equivalent to even the state's own cotton base requirements is not being realized.
